Championship's future as county

Julie Denning, our SCCU and ECF delegate, reports on an eventful year

THE season started for the SCCU with the North v South (of the river) match as the finale of the Union's 125th anniversary celebration. This took place on September 16, 2017, in London, over 68 boards.

The teams were very evenly matched, with only a one point difference (in South's favour) in average grade, but the result ended up as a victory for North by 36½-31½. My thanks to all of those from Sussex who participated and helped to make this a memorable occasion.

The union stage of the county championships was somewhat marred over the past season by an unusually high number of disputes, with three resulting in appeals to the union's rules & appeals sub-committee, of which I was ex-officio convenor as union president. One of these involved a Sussex team (with me obviously recused from taking part in its resolution).

I have reported on these cases to club and county officials elsewhere. The main point I want to make here is that teams should make every effort to resolve issues between themselves, on the day of the match.

It is not realistic to require official arbiters to be present for these matches. Not only does it take up a great deal of volunteers' time if a dispute is referred upwards, but difficult though it might be to resolve something on the spot, it's even more facing uncertain chess struggles difficult for union officers who weren't there.

The SCCU is considering introducing a charge for making an appeal against a decision of the county match controller (refundable if the appeal is upheld) and also requiring appeals to be endorsed by a county official.

There are concerns over the future of the county championship competition. The chess scene has changed drastically since the start of this very long-standing competition. Many see the 4NCL competing for player interest, while there are now many weekend congresses that we can enter.

Other competitions have succumbed to these changes, most notably the national clubs competition which has now died completely. The fear is of the county championships gradually going the same way. Compared to other regions, the SCCU has been reasonably successful in maintaining interest in its union stage of the competition, but there's no room for complacency. There are counties that the SCCU consider to be in their area who are not affiliated at all, while those who do not enter teams at all grading levels.

Sussex is among the smaller counties (in terms of ECF-registered players) and for many of our players there can be significant distances involved, even for home matches, let alone away matches north of the river. We have certainly struggled to maintain our involvement.

With this situation in mind, there was discussion at the recent SCCU annual meeting of possible initiatives for increasing awareness of, and participation in, SCCU events. One idea that is being actively worked on is to hold a one-day team event somewhere in the London area next summer. This will be for small teams, possibly, but not necessarily, representing individual clubs. I will report more on this when I can.

The British Chess Education Trust makes a number of awards of chess equipment to schools each year. The SCCU typically submits two nominations. One of the nominations this year (proposed by Chess in Schools and Communities) was for Goldstone Primary School in Hove. I'm pleased to report that this nomination was successful.

A matter that has taken up quite a bit of time this year, for both the SCCU and ECF, has been compliance with the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). I'm sure we all see this as going way over the top in catching the likes of chess leagues and even individual clubs, but it is something we all need to take into account.

At the SCCU AGM held on July 1, I stood down as president after three years. I have been succeeded by Mark Murrell of Essex.

Turning to ECF matters, in addition to my responsibilities as a non-executive director, I have attended the usual two council meetings during the year as the delegate for Sussex.

At the AGM last October there were no surprises or sparks over elections, with all incumbents, myself included, being re-elected.

Following somewhat inconclusive discussions and votes at previous council meetings over voting reform, resolutions were passed at the latest AGM

Chris is right man for the job

ROLE:
Chris Fegan

Over the past few months, the ECF has got itself into a spot of bother over the position of director of women's chess.

This was a newly-created post a couple of years ago and Sarah Longson was elected at the 2016 AGM.

However, she resigned shortly after the 2017 AGM, at least in part due to increased workload having taken over the running of the UK Chess Challenge.

Initial attempts to find a suitable replacement were unsuccessful and the Board put on the agenda for the April, 2018, finance council a proposal to disestablish this directorship.

This caused some furore, at least among contributors to the English Chess Forum (nothing to do with the ECF).

Also, shortly before the finance council meeting, Chris Fegan approached the Board about taking up the role. Prior to me joining the Board in to increase the aggregate number of votes held by direct members' representatives from 10 to 40. Those representing honorary life vice-presidents, honorary life members and life members and those representing platinum members will continue to have one vote each, but those representing gold members, silver members or bronze members will have six votes each. This will be out of around 340 votes in total at council.

The yearbook is to cease being produced in hardcopy form. All the contacts information will in future be made available online, where it can more readily be kept up to date, and is probably where most people would now expect to find it.

With effect from the start of the 2018/19 membership year, the ECF is employing a different company to manage the online membership system. It is hoped this will provide enhanced functionality for members and clubs, and includes the ability to set up direct debit payments. Adult membership fees for 2018/19 remain unchanged, although the £1 discount for joining or renewing online has been withdrawn. Junior membership fees are being reduced below gold level. A free first year junior silver membership will continue to be offered. Beyond the first year, junior membership with privileges up to those of silver will cost £5. It is hoped this will encourage more juniors to become, and remain, members.

Following open consultation exercises, the director of home chess proposed a number of changes to the rules for the national stages of the county championships. These were not supported by the SCCU and were all rejected by the ECF Council. However, please note the discussion above about us not being complacent. This is definitely seen as being a competition under threat.

The director of home chess, Alex Holowczak, was last elected to the post at the 2017 AGM, for a period of three years. However, he has recently announced that he will stand down at the 2018 AGM due to time conflicts with work late 2015, Chris had attended Board meetings as a non-voting strategy advisor.

This did not continue after the 2015 AGM purge, although he has remained very active in chess matters, both as a delegate to council and as chief executive of Chess in Schools and Communities.

He also has a record of arguing in support of women's chess at council meetings. The Board, therefore, decided to withdraw its proposal to disestablish the post and make a further effort to recruit someone.

Following discussion at the finance council, two women candidates came forward in addition to Chris. Of the three, two were interviewed and Chris was appointed.

This led to outbursts in the national press about the ECF appointing a man to this position when there also two women candidates.

Speaking as a director, there's a bit more to this than immediately meets the eye, but there was no upside for the ECF in prolonging a public argument.

As a woman director, I am content that Chris was the best candidate. In particular, he was the only one who could reasonably be expected to hit the ground running in terms of the necessary experience to organise the forthcoming English Women's Championship, responsibility for which was passed to this directorate from that of Home Chess.

commitments. Alex and I haven't always seen eye-to-eye on some of his ideas, but I have always held him in high regard for the effort he puts into managing his extensive brief.

His shoes are going to be very big ones for someone else to fill.

Another matter that has been getting quite a lot of public attention, and is an issue for the ECF Board, is that of the FIDE presidential election, taking place in early October.

The Russian president of the past 23 years is finally standing down after a lot of controversy. In particular, he is named on a US sanctions list which has resulted in FIDE losing banking facilities.

There are three new candidates standing, each of whom has to name a "ticket" of six other people with whom they will take office.

There is English interest in two of these tickets.

Nigel Short is heading up one of them, while Malcolm Pein (ECF director of international chess and FIDE delegate, among many other prominent chess roles) is named as candidate for deputy president on the ticket of Georgios Makropoulos (the current deputy president of FIDE).

The final candidate is Arkady Dvorkovich, who is a past deputy prime minister of Russia and headed up the organising committee for the recent football World Cup.

Also, many Sussex chess clubs are now actively catering for juniors – particularly Crowborough, Brighton & Hove, Horsham, Lewes and Worthing – giving them the opportunity to compete in the Mid-Sussex League at both rapidplay and standardplay.

We have seen an increase in provision for junior chess in nearby counties, particularly Berkshire, Hampshire and Richmond, which has resulted in some stiff competition for our younger teams this season.

However, the senior teams continue to do well, winning the NYCA Championships at U14, U16, and U18 level and runners-up at U12. The U18 team were also narrowly squeezed into second place by half a point at the ECF National Championships in Grantham.

Overall, we entered teams into nine competitions, allowing more than 100 children to represent their county. This is in addition to the senior juniors who represent Sussex in the County Championships – thanks to the captains who select them.

This is in addition to the Sussex Junior Chess sponsored “Sussex Martlets” teams in the 4NCL which are largely formed from ex-juniors, juniors and coaches supported by members of other Sussex chess clubs. This year, we had teams in Divisions 2, 3 and 4, which is optimal for development and succession, and after a very tense final weekend all three teams managed to retain their places.

Prize for the most unusual venue goes to the SCCU/U130 grade team who played their home fixture against Richmond in St. Augustine's Church, Scaynes Hill.

Having resurrected the Sussex v Ireland fixture last year, Mike Forster and family organised a very successful return leg hosted at the Arora Hotel, Crawley, where Sussex retained the Sir Patrick Moore Cup and hope to be invited back to Dublin in 2019.

The inter-schools competitions continue to be very popular with 40 schools from all around the county taking part. Thanks to Chris Jones (Worthing CC) for organising the U11 Primary Cup which was won by Copthorne Prep; and to Julian Franklin (Windlesham House School) for the U14 Butler Cup, which was retained by Brighton College. Brighton College established a chess scholarship a few years ago which has attracted a lot of very strong players – they will be a force to be reckoned with in national schools competitions in the years to come.

As always, there were many individual honours – Timmy Hedger (Worthing) and Solomon Mitchell (Lewes)

both successfully trialled for the National Chess Junior Squad; Oliver Howell, Edward Gray, Matt Forster and Lucy Bennet-Stevens represented England in ECF teams; and several others visited Poland and the Czech Republic with the NCJS.

Finally, in other news, Edward Gray attended the London Chess Classic and was selected to make the first move for GM Sergey Karjakin;

the rail deal

MANY years ago, back in the late 1970s as I recall, I entered the Sussex Queen and found myself paired against a player from Eastbourne.

In those pre-internet days, organising our game was less straightforward than these days and we agreed to rendezvous at Brighton Chess Club. This seemed a good idea as the venue was vaguely equidistant and I had been told they were open every day of the year.

At 7pm we arrived at the premises to find they were closed. We moved ourselves to the Brighton railway station and two cups of tea later we were sat down at a table in the café. This proved tolerably satisfactory and all was going well until about 9pm when the proprietor asked if we might vacate our seats as he was closing the premises.

We decanted to a bench on the open concourse and continued our game. This was a very even struggle and at something approaching 11pm we were required to seal and adjourn. While life was not as busy as today, nonetheless, the idea of repeating this exercise as not attractive, if only from the travel costs perspective in those financially more constrained times.

I offered a draw but my opponent felt he had a small advantage. I disagreed with this assessment and we played on for a couple more moves. By now there was an interesting clientele sharing the concourse with us, some colourful characters for sure, not at all to my comfort. I think I am correct when I say the WSQ Tournament was a knockout in those days and in the event of a draw a second game should be played with colours reversed. I solved this problem in what, to this day remains unique in my chess experience – I offered a draw, which was this time accepted, and resigned the second game without a move being played.

I do not recall how my opponent progressed – I did indeed wish him well after this interesting playing experience. If anyone connected with Eastbourne Chess Club, or Sussex Chess has any information then I would be very glad to get an update. I have been unable to locate my scoresheet, which is a shame. Every blank scoresheet I see reminds me of this episode.

By now there was an interesting clientele sharing the concourse with, some colourful characters for sure

Tough going after half-way finish

THE 2016-17 Ward-Higgs concluded with Sussex scoring 7.5 out of 16, to finish joint fifth out of the 10 teams in the top division. Individual results were as follows:

Board	Sussex Player	Opponent	White	Black	Total
1	Eastoe, Leslie K. G.	GM Coleman, Peter L.	Win	Draw	1.5/2
2	Batchelor, Paul A.	McLeod, Fraser	Win	Draw	1.5/2
3	Spanton, Tim	CCE Yeo, Gareth	Draw	Loss	0.5/2
4	Mansson, James C.	Reed, Arthur F.	Draw	Draw	1/2
5	Mansson, Ralph A.	Young, Daniel	Draw	Loss	0.5/2
6	Elliston, Robert V.	Jones, Brian	Draw	Loss	0.5/2
7	Fryer, David W.	Hart, Terry	Win	Win	2/2
8	Sharp, Joseph	Lefevre, Stephen D.	Loss	Loss	0/2

The 2017-18 Ward-Higgs is currently in progress. Sussex are currently in last position on 4 out of 13 and facing relegation.

The team suffered a series of misfortunes during the season.

David Fryer's opponent was unwell and died while their games were in progress; a substitute replaced him, but David felt uncomfortable continuing the game.

At his request, I contacted the Yorkshire captain about agreeing the two games drawn.

He was happy to go along with this and this is, in fact, what happened.

Robert Elliston had decided to drop out of the correspondence team, so I needed a replacement. I was recommended a replacement in Richard Clark.

Unfortunately, after a few months, he silently withdrew from all the correspondence chess games he was playing (not just the Ward-Higgs).

As I was unable to find a replacement before he was declared to have defaulted all his games,

stave off relegation

Because of this withdrawal, we need another player in the team.

That player will play two games, one White and one Black, against the same opponent from one of the other counties.

If you are interested in learning more, please contact by e-mail at jmansson@argo-software.co.uk the Sussex Correspondence Team Captain James Mansson.

Individual results so far are:

Board	Sussex Player	Opponent	White	Black	Total
1	Eastoe, Leslie K. G.	Carleton, John Joseph	Draw	Draw	1/2
2	Batchelor, Paul A.	Yeo, Gareth	Draw	Draw	1/2
3	Spanton, Tim	James, Angus	Draw	Loss	0.5/2
4	Mansson, James C.	Perrin, Richard David		Draw	0.5/1
5	Clark, Richard I.	Lunn, Tim	Loss	Loss	0/2
6	Mansson, Ralph A.	Stebbing, Anthony J.			0/0
7	Fryer, David W.	Milton, David H. Beckett, Rosanna	Draw	Draw	1/2
8	Sharp, Joseph	Thornton, John D.	Loss	Loss	0/0

The fourth British Webserver Team Tournament has recently finished. Sussex had a team in division 2.

The team was James Mansson, Tim Spanton, Paul Batchelor, and David Fryer. The final scores were:

- James Mansson (Board 1): 3/6 (1 win, 4 draws and 1 loss)
- Tim Spanton (Board 2): 2.5/6 (5 draws and 1 loss)
- Paul Batchelor (Board 3): 4/6 (2 wins and 4 draws)

- David Fryer (Board 4): 4/6 (3 wins, 2 draws and 1 loss)

This placed the team in third place in division 2, narrowly missing promotion.

Sussex has just started competing in the fifth British Webserver Team Tournament, in division 2. The team is James Mansson, Tim Spanton, Paul Batchelor, and David Fryer. No games have been completed yet.

DAVID George Springgay was born on February 16, 1937, at Brighton. From a young age, he developed a natural ability for chess and he first joined Brighton Chess Club when its premises were inside the Royal Pavilion. Not long after this, the club moved a few yards to the south to 4 Pavilion Buildings, which is nowadays the site of the Pavilion Shop, Dave was only 16 when he became the youngest ever winner of the Brighton CC Championship in 1953. He next won the competition in 1958, but in that year he went one step further by defeating M. Ayriss in the final of the county championship. In 1959 he again won the Brighton CC Championship and in 1960 again reached the county championship final. This time he was unsuccessful. The resolute Hastings champion, Arthur Winser, fought a marathon match against him, which took several hours to resolve. Eventually, Winser prevailed after two games had been drawn. In 1962, Dave won the Brighton CC Championship for the fourth and last time and he again became county champion after winning against John Cannon in the final. In the 1963 county final, Arthur Winser was again his opponent and this time Dave won both of their games.

In 1961, Dave qualified for the British Championship at Aberystwyth. Here, he faced top class opposition and some eyebrows were probably raised when he defeated the international master, Cenek Kottnauer, in an early round. There were some ups and downs in this tournament, but eventually he scored six points out of 11 and came tenth equal, which was an excellent result.

By 1963, Dave was clearly the best player in Sussex and he now stopped entering the Brighton and Sussex championships. Perhaps he was becoming bored with playing the same opponents. In 1965 he was persuaded to join Hastings Chess Club, which had regular matches against strong London clubs and also entered the National Club Championship. In April, 1966, in a match between Hastings and Streatham and Brixton, Dave came up against the powerful London player, Ray Keene. In an interesting game it was Ray, who prevailed, but his win was not surprising as he was selected for the England team in that year.

In 1968, Dave returned to the Brighton team, which by this time also competed in the National Club Championship. He played several interesting games and in 1972 even entered the county championship again. Unfortunately, his interest in the game was probably waning as he withdrew from the competition after only playing two games. He now took a break from the game.

He was tempted back in 1976 when a tournament of baseline chess was held in the Royal Pavilion. According to this variation on the rules of chess, players chose where to place their pieces on the first rank, though this had to be different from the normal set up. Some strong players converged on Brighton for this event, but Dave's natural creative genius enabled him to take first place. In the same year he became British champion at hexagonal chess with a 100% score.

It was to be eight years later that Dave returned to competitive chess to play in his final tournament. The BCF Congress came to Brighton in 1984 and he competed in the Major Open event. Although he was out of practice, he did well to score about 50% in a strong tournament.

After this he made infrequent visits to Brighton Chess Club for a few years and played a few social games. He continued to live in Brighton where he died on February 12, 2018, aged 80.

Club's in crisis

as numbers fall

HAVING just been relegated, The Args did extremely well to finish second in Div 3 of the Mid-Sussex League, to get promoted back to Div 2 provided we can field a team!

Peter Farr and Jim Graham were on hot form to take leading places in the averages.

New recruit Mick Harris battled bravely through hip pain and a hospital operation.

The Board 2 recovering from a badly broken arm also needed another operation!

Meanwhile, Dennis Collard contributed a few brave draws and seemed fit enough.

Results including the MSL League and Knockout :

Peter Farr 7/8; Paul Kington 4/8; Jim Graham 6/8; Mick Harris 3.5/7; Dennis Collard 1.5/7.

After the season Dennis Collard suddenly became ill and died on June 17, aged 75.

This was another severe blow for us after Mike Garson's sudden death last year, aged 74.

Together with Bob Huston (now a retired octogenarian!) they formed the team in 1974.

The title 'Argumentatives' really meant wit and words and wisdom rather than aggression!

Perhaps not great chess players but certainly great characters.

They will be sadly missed and indeed we are now in crisis with only four players left.

So this is not just a tribute but a plea for new members (as they all wanted us to carry on).

However, if we cannot find at least one more player very soon we will be forced to quit.

Our venue remains The Jolly Tanners at Staplefield with its separate chess room and excellent food and drink.

If you wish to join us phone me on 01403 730018 or else contact Peter, Jim or Mick.

Bogdan is a simul success

THE major event over the last year was a simul by Grandmaster Bogdan Lalic to mark Sussex Day on June 16. It was opened by the Bexhill Mayor, Abul Azad, accompanied by the Sussex Day Champion, former Mayor and Bexhill member, Paul Lendon.

Bogdan's opponents included visitors from Brighton, Eastbourne, Hastings and Horsham. He won 27 games, losing none but drawing three, two against 13-year-old Calum Salmons, who plays for Brighton & Hove Chess Club, and the other against WFM Rasa Norinkeviciute, of Eastbourne.

Two Bexhill players managed to get into equal-looking endgames before succumbing to the superior technique of the GM. It is hoped to hold regular such events in the future.

A sad note: we have to record the passing of long-standing member Michael Dean, after a protracted and brave fight against cancer. He had also been a member of Eastbourne and Hastings & St Leonards chess clubs. Right to the end, he was driving around the country to compete in chess tournaments and was a regular competitor at the Hastings International Chess Congress. We shall miss one of nature's gentlemen.

The club champion is Steve Blewitt, for the second time. He scored 6/8 together with Thomas Minter but won a two-game play-off with a win and a draw. The Gordon Cup was won by David Slidel on 7/8, followed by Mercy Nieva with 6/8. Mercy will therefore take part next season in the Championship, being probably the first woman to do so, at least for many decades.

The winner of last summer's Rapidplay Major Section was again Steve Blewitt with a score of 14½ points from 16. Second was Alan Ticehurst with 13/16. The Minor Section was won by our oldest member, Alfred Mikurenda, who achieved the remarkable score of 15½/16. Runner-up was Tony Demarco (12½/16), who was the only competitor to take even half a point off Alfred.

The club is maintaining a fairly steady membership of over 20, but really needs an influx of younger members, especially some juniors.

It should be noted that we have use of an excellent venue in Centenary House, 21 Holliers Hill, Bexhill-on-Sea, TN40 2DH. Meetings are on Tuesdays and Saturdays, between 1pm and 4.30pm

MOVES: The chess challenge, top, and club champion
Jaimie Wilson, above

JAIMIE WILSON is the club champion this year ... and he's still in with a chance of winning the club's other major trophy, the Knockout Cup, having reached the semi-final.

During the year, the club had a highly successful 'chess challenge', members taking on allcomers at East Preston Festival. The event, held at the Seaview Hotel, drew large crowds in June.

The summer tournament is still ongoing at the time of going to press, with Keith Davies currently leading the field.

SUMMER SUCCESS: The Brighton club's summer tournament gets underway

Future's looking Brighton breezy

BRIGHTON and Hove have been very busy this year with several new ventures and a constant influx of new members.

Perhaps our most significant new venture was the launch of a much-needed Junior Club which runs for an hour before our regular club on Thursday evenings during term-time.

CLUBS/BRIGHTON & HOVE

The juniors have been excellently coached by only slightly senior Callum Brewer, currently the club's strongest active player at 17, who has himself been invited to play at the World Junior Championship in Turkey in September.

The Juniors have formed an enthusiastic group with all four entrants to the Sussex Schools Megafinal qualifying for the Southern Gigafinal. They have also made their debut in the Mid-Sussex Rapidplay League and the club is already benefiting from the infiltration of the top juniors into the senior club.

In the senior club, the Club Championship was won by Joe Everett, the Plummer Knight by Michael Hamilton, after a three-way play-off with Terry Brown and Paul Selby, the Tasker Tankard by Julian Clark and the Denman Cup by Caroline Campion.

We ran an open Summer Tournament as a five-round Swiss over several weeks from May to July which was won jointly by Michael Hamilton and Joe Everett on four points each (Joe only losing to Michael).

This was another innovation using pairing software and flexible fixtures which seemed to work rather well and kept the competition up to speed for all the rounds.

It is tempting to introduce it for our all-play-alls over the winter months which always seem to have trouble getting going in the run up to Christmas.

Finally, we held a Holcombe Handicap on a Saturday afternoon in June as a time-handicapped rapidplay tournament.

Charles Holcombe passed away in January, leaving a lump sum to fund a handicap tournament in perpetuity so this was an ungraded fun afternoon with cash prizes for first, second and third.

Mikolaj Rogacewicz, our other 17-year-old star, was winning throughout in spite of having the greatest handicap but couldn't quite make all the moves in time to beat Robin Jones in the final round.

The competition was therefore won by Alaa Albadin with Mikolaj and Robin as runners-up. It was no great surprise that Mikolaj and Robin were the two youngest competitors.

There is still a debate to be had about whether a one-second increment would have made things just too easy for the top players.

Anyone with any experience of time handicaps might like to advise. Each round was 30 minutes with 2 v 28 minutes for the maximum grading difference we had on the day (potentially 1 v 29 for 102+ difference).

We still have our summer staples of the Brunswick Festival and the Dieppe Club visit to Brighton to round off the year, although a certain organiser/keen supporter of these events will have a very new chess player to deal with very shortly and may have to realign his priorities.

We hope the third team will still have a captain come October.

CHICHESTER Chess Club meets at the Fishbourne Centre, Blackboy Lane, Fishbourne, on Monday evenings from 7.15pm.

The centre offers excellent facilities for chess as well as having a great many other activities on offer which are set out on their very informative website: www.fishbournecentre.org.uk

The chess club also has a website giving up to date league results and results from our internal club competitions: www.chichesterchessclub.co.uk

Jointly with Bognor & Arun Chess Club, we entered three teams in the Portsmouth League. The A team won the League Championship for the third season in succession, while the C team finished top of the third division

The Club Championship was won by Andrew McDougall, with Philip Wake winning the Under 130 Championship.

Twelve-year-old Tom Howeson came out on top in the Under 105.

The Handicap Competition, for the Peter Rayment Trophy, was a very closely fought affair, with Chris Squires finally prevailing. Jaimie Wilson won the inaugural rapidplay competition.

We are looking forward to our very successful association with Bognor & Arun continuing in the Portsmouth League, with the club continuing to thrive at Fishbourne.

CHESS is one of the few competitive activities where games can be played between all ages.

It is also great when the older generations embrace the new fashions and Crowborough Chess Club has been lucky enough to see this in action with our long-serving and oldest members, Don Grant and Robert Elliston, helping out with the junior club. They can be found doing battle on Friday nights playing blitz and rapid games with 5 second increments against our juniors ranging from beginners to county and England players.

It has been the chief aim of the club this year to incorporate our juniors into the main club using the bridge of rapidplay games. The Club Championship competition has been excellently organised by Chris Dunn and was a brilliant success with 22 players competing for the trophy. This year's innovation of 3 points for a win, 2 for a draw and 1 for a loss encouraged players to turn up and play resulting in 160 graded games played over the season.

The competition was taken very seriously by our adult members even so a number including myself came unstuck against our juniors. Congratulations go to the clear winner and new club champion, Michael Redman.

In April, Gary McCulloch organised our spring lightning tournament which Jonathan Tuck won with a 100% score and the top junior prize was won by third-placed Giovanni Currah. The 10 second buzzer tends to slow down the juniors and cause the rest of us near heart attacks.

Breaking the age barrier

We entered teams in the MSCL Second Division as well as the KO Cup and the Rapid Play League. Our 1st team avoided relegation thanks to good performances from regulars Chris Dunn, Robert Elliston and Jon Lawrance who all scored above 50%. The juniors came very close to winning the Rapidplay Championship but could not quite recover from a 0-4 loss at home to future league winners Lewes in the first match of the season. We now look forward to the 33rd Crowborough Chess Congress on Saturday, September 15.

QUICK THINKING: Action from Brighton v Crowborough in the Rapidplay League

Norman: A man for all seasons

ANOTHER year passes and as always I am grateful for the support of the elected officials and the team captains without whom the club could not function properly.

At the start of the season, numbers were sufficient to allow us to enter two teams in the Mid-Sussex League. However, due to personal circumstances and illness, numbers fell away towards the end of the season and no new member joined during the year.

On average, we still attract 12-14 players who turn up on a regular club night which allows us to enter to teams in the Mid-Sussex league. By the standards of some clubs, this is fairly small but it was only a few years ago numbers were much lower.

To attract new members, we still play chess every Wednesday at the book shop in East Grinstead High Street and when the weather allows we play al fresco much to the interest of passers-by. This has now become a regular attraction in the High Street and with the help of club members someone is usually on hand to offer help and guidance.

You can also follow us on Twitter thanks to one of our members, Roy Henderson, who runs the official East Grinstead Twitter site. In June, Jonathan Tuck, from Crowborough Chess Club, for the second year running, kindly took on allcomers simultaneously - eight boards in play - in the High Street, which is a good advert for co-operation between clubs in the Mid-Sussex League. Thanks, Jonathan, but could we win at least one board next time?

Team captains try to make sure everyone gets a chance to play both home and away for the club which sometimes means fielding a slightly weaker team but keeps the club more inclusive. We managed to meet all our obligations in the Mid-Sussex League but cannot report any promotions and gladly no relegations. Well done to team captains Ian Dennis and Andrew Finnie (Finn), plus all those who turned out to play. Our internal competitions run very efficiently by Norman Hawkins are proving extremely popular. We now have four internal competitions which means most club members have a chance to play each other during the season. With four competitions and two teams in the Mid-Sussex League, it was a struggle to fit all games in so I am pleased to confirm that in 2018 club nights were extended into mid-May. The winner of the Knockout competition is yet to be decided.

Rapidplay was won by Stephen Mills who managed six wins, not to mention two other victories which were subsequently not included due to withdrawals. Runner-up was Andrew Finnie. The Championship this year was run as one division with awards for the highest-placed under 120 and 100. The club champion was Eric Granzelius – Under 120 winner Grau Christian and under 100 winner myself.

Thanks go to Norman for all his efforts which has made club nights more challenging and enjoyable. Unfortunately Norman will not be returning to the club next season. However, the baton has been passed to Eric Granzelius so remains in capable hands.

We are a small friendly club which meets every Tuesday - September to April– our home being The Age Concern premises in Queens Road, East Grinstead.

Bogdan makes top board debut

THE club has enjoyed a successful season, in particular gaining promotion to the first division for its second team and taking the premier division title after a close struggle with Worthing and Brighton.

The emphatic early season win over Worthing saw the debut on top board of Croatian GM Bogdan Lalic (pronounced Lalich). Bogdan had long lived at Sutton, Surrey, but moved to Hastings some months before the season began. The most significant contribution to the two top teams came from another new member, Nicolas Varley, who had played his chess in recent years in Magnus Carlsen land, i.e. Norway!

An interesting project was the re-establishment of a match with the Dordrecht club in May. This was played over 21 boards in three sections at a rapid time limit. The large number of boards required use of three storeys of the club building, where three seeded sections were contested. The top section went to the home side due to a big score on top board by GM Lalic, but the Dutchmen dominated in the other two and ran out winners in the seven-round match by 86-61.

The club championship for 11 players ended with the top two undefeated: 1 John Sugden 7.5, 2 Rasa Norinkeviciute 7, followed at a respectful distance by former champions Francis Rayner 5.5

and Bernard Cafferty 5. Howard Tebbs and Paul Kelly also scored 5 points. Steve Blewitt set up a blistering pace in the Pelton Cup making 9.5 points from ten games!

The club gained attention in the national press early in 2018 in connection with a sort of 'man bites dog' story. Bogdan Lalic took part in some of the regular Rapid events arranged by Paul Buswell, but on this particular occasion came half a point behind the 83-year-old veteran, Bernard Cafferty, who conceded only two draws over the seven rounds.

Long-serving club housekeeper/caretaker Roy Bourne died early in the year, so new arrangements now apply for the service of refreshments. The junior club continues to meet on Wednesday evenings under the supervision of Mason Woodhams, our chairman, Marc Bryant and Adrian Cload.

Cafe shutdown gives food for thought

WE had a surprise venue change mid-season, when the church cafe which has been hosting us shut down.

We are now ensconced at the Ashenground Community Centre and, indeed, were one of the features at their open day this summer.

Our first team survived in division 1 of the MSL, and our second team achieved mid-table respectability in division 4.

Our League Knockout team got KO'ed, but achieved its aim of spreading competitive experience around the club.

On the home front, Roland Rattray unseated David Curtis as Challenge trophy winner, while Viv Cole won a keenly contested Lightning Competition, unseating some Polish fellow.

We sustained the sad loss of Dick Mercer this past season, a decades-long established member and official of the club. Belatedly, we heard news of the death also of David Hooper, who had been a member and club official in the past.

The players change but, with members and finances stable, the club continues. We cast an eye on the blank pages in our scorebooks and wonder what will be written on them in the coming season.

Feliks Kwiatkowski

Lucy is one for the future

THE 2017-18 season was another busy one, with our continuing mixture of Mid-Sussex League matches and internal competitions.

Our club championship for the solid silver Rook trophy is an all-play-all competition involving the top ten players in the club.

This year saw a very close fight, with James Mansson, Anthony Higgs and Lucy Bennett-Stevens all in contention, the latter being a surprise contender.

At only 15 years of age, Lucy becomes stronger by the month and her strategic style offers great future promise. The final games saw James triumph, with Lucy runner-up. The Bishop all-play-all offers tough competition for those ineligible for the Rook and in recent years a two-up two-down policy has strengthened this second league.

This year's unbeaten winner was Dix Roberts, who will return to the Rook, of which he is a multiple past winner. In the Junior club Ben Crosby won the Peter Alford Cup and was also able to win the ladder competition.

Our standard play Knockout competitions ensure a good mix of games, often with players who would not normally win.

We also have a Plate competition for those first round losers, so that all competitors have at least two games. The Open Knockout final took several rounds to resolve with James Mansson and Mike Forster playing high level chess.

Following two standard play draws in the final, Mike Forster prevailed, by winning the second of two 30-minutes-per-player tie-break games. In the Knockout Plate final, Alex

CLUBS/HORSHAM

Taylor and John Marshall had a sharp struggle, reflecting the fact that they are both combative players. Alex mounted a fierce attack, which John parried, and he then turned the tables with an unexpected tactic to gain victory. (See Page 63).

We also play some quickplay chess, which is not to everyone's taste, but which provides an opportunity for meeting different opponents and trying out some novel ideas. Our evening of lightning chess, with ten-second moves on the buzzer, saw the usual inaccurate and fun games as well as some excellent games.

Brian Donnelly won the Lightning Tankard for the sixth time, and it was an excellent evening of chess, to be recommended to other clubs. We also play a 15-minute Quickplay Knockout competition, which was won by Anthony Higgs in a tense final against James Mansson. The Quickplay Plate final between Nick Warren and Richard Barrowclough was an eventful double-edged affair, with Nick being victorious.

Nick Warren was also our most successful player in the Mid-Sussex Chess League, with an impressive score of 5/6 (83%).

In the MSL division 1, Horsham 1 finished in fourth place, a little lower than in previous years, where they have vied for runners-up position. Horsham finished just half a point behind the

Our evening of lightning chess, with ten-second moves on the buzzer, saw the usual inaccurate and fun games as well as some excellent games runners-up, and since they last won the top division in 2010, we hope for a return to form in future years!

Both Horsham 2 and Horsham 3 competed in division 2. Because we have a number of players of similar strength, the two teams were quite evenly matched, and this led to an unusual situation where Horsham 3 came 2nd and Horsham 2 came fourth!

It is worth noting how much stronger division 2 has become over the years. Horsham 4 were placed in division 4 in order to even up the divisions at the beginning of the season although they had expected to be in division 3.

They came an impressive second which is particularly exciting since our bottom team is used to ensure that all players who fancy league chess get games.

We have fully supported the junior rapidplay competition, in which our team finished bottom this season. In the past, some Horsham juniors have become very strong (Matt Forster is graded 184!), and this is a great competition for encouraging developing juniors to flourish.

It has been an exciting innovation and much credit should be given to all those who have nursed it into existence.

With no Sussex U160 team and one U140 match snowed off and not rearranged, 16 Horsham players played 39 county games with a healthy plus score of 23½-15½.

As we end the season, it is always an appropriate time to look ahead.

As a club, we have seen our six teams decreased to four, which reflects the ebb and flow of membership and it would be good to see our numbers grow again as it offers opportunities to try new and refreshing ideas, which are needed so much in this most noble and exciting of games.

Ian Comley

Hello, goodbye, it's win some, lose some

THE club meets on the second and fourth Wednesday of every month at the Luxford Centre in the centre of the town from 7pm-10.30pm, and new members are very welcome.

In fact, we need new members as every year recently we have been losing our top junior to university, though in the last year we have welcomed back some senior members who have helped the club to survive.

The last season did not produce the success we have had in recent seasons, with several key members off peak performance. Where last year we vied for promotion from Division 2 of the Mid-Sussex League, this year we were in a relegation battle but managed to survive.

Our second team in Division 4 had a better season and could have been promoted perhaps, as our home form was outstanding. However, we could not repeat that level in away matches as we could not use to the same level on long midweek evenings our ever improving junior players.

We have to rely on the young for the future of this great game, but it is never too late!

We have always been a good knockout team, but as the previous season MSL champions this year we went out in the first round in a close match, perhaps because we had to give up home advantage to have the match played. We were also disappointed, having entered the Paul Watson Cup, that we heard nothing and assume it did not happen this season, which was a shame as we fancied our chances.

Our internal club competitions nearly saw a complete father/son duopoly, with Brian Stockham winning the Grand Prix and Standard Play, and son Michael Stockham winning the Rapid Play, Handicap Split, Blitz and Top Junior trophies. Thankfully, our top board, Chaski Patrick, won the Knockout Cup.

This year we lose Michael to the next stage in life, but he finished on a high in coming second in the MSL Div 4 rankings, on 92%; he came second in the Under-18 Sussex

Both he and Daniel Longley qualified for the Southern Gigafinal (a national semi-final) of the same competition and we are pleased for the future that Daniel from there qualified for the national final stages, as did Hugo Ullmann from our junior club.

The future, therefore, looks bright with our affiliated Uckfield Junior Chess Club, which meets every Friday of the school term at the Uckfield Youth Centre between 5.15pm-6.30pm. In the last year, 26 local youngsters have been to sessions and made progress, with Michael Stockham winning the Grand Prix, Knockout and Lightning trophies in his last year, Benedict Weis the Most Improved Player, Sam Godfrey the Most Promising Young Player and Will Walshe-Grey the Courtesy trophy. An Under-9, Hugo Ullmann, was the local champion at the Uckfield Academy summer championships.

Bowled over by a fantastic year

WITHOUT doubt this must have been our best season ever.

Our first team came second in division one and our second team maintained division one status with a creditable sixth place.

But what was to follow was impressive. The third team comfortably won division 3, scoring 5.5/6 match points and finishing 1.5 match points clear of the nearest rivals. Even more impressive was our 4th team's success in division 4, winning with a 100 per cent clean sweep of 7/7. They consistently fielded a very young team, in fact, 28 of the 35 games played were by juniors, all under 15!

Additional icing on the cake came from the evergreen Keith Homeyard who won the overall divisional tankard, scoring 10/11 and no losses. He also won the division 3 tankard with 7/7.

Not to be outdone, junior Max Bennett ran him pretty close. He scored 10.5/12 from all divisions and won the division 4 tankard with an identical 7/7.

Drivers and captains permitting, we hope to field a 5th team this coming season.

Even though our season has finished, we still find time to get down to the bar for some beers and skittles.

TOURNAMENTS/WEALD CONGRESS

THE Weald Chess Congress began in 2006 as a way of introducing stronger juniors to standard play tournament chess and has grown year on year to reach 115 entries in 2017.

In previous years, we had been able to offer the carrot of a British Chess Championships qualifying place – something now only available to FIDE-rated congresses – so we were pleased to see entry numbers maintained.

The Open was won by Conor Murphy (previously from Kent, now at Cambridge University) from GM Nick Pert whose route to the prizes was seriously hampered by draws to Sussex Junior Chess coaches Chaski Patrick (Lewes)

A feature of the congress has always been the number of parent and child competitors. With many dads having their arms twisted to put their chess pieces where their advice is this year saw eight father-child combinationsand in what must be a first, the entire arbiting team came from one family.

Paul Batchelor reports on U180 season

OUR first match was away to Surrey, which we lost 11-5. Performances of note were recorded by Robert Lanzer and myself.

Next we played Essex at home. Essex won by 12½-3½. Individual performances of note were registered by David Roberts and James Wheeler.

Kent at home was the next one. Due to problems with qualification of a Kent player I, sportingly, agreed to a 15-board match. Kent were the stronger side, winning 9-6. Our side scored the most wins in any match this cycle, five. Winners were: Robert Elliston, myself, Tim Spanton, Paul Taylor and Alan Palmer.

Middlesex away was the last match in this SCCU season. Middlesex were to win by 12-4. We did score three wins in this match though.

Winners on the day, were Adrian Pickersgill, Tim Spanton and myself.

Final flourish

OUR first match was against a strong Surrey side, who were to field five players rated above 200 ECF. Surrey ran out winners 9-7.

Some fine individual performances were recorded by the following Sussex players, Gareth Anthony, Amardip Ahluwalia, Mikolaj Rogacewicz and David Roberts.

Next, we faced Essex's Open team. Matthew Payne was to play his first game of the season for us. Matthew comfortably drew his game. It was a close match, where Sussex just edged out Essex, winning 8½-7½. Again, there were some performances of note by the following: Gareth Anthony, Mark Broom, James Mansson, Anthony Higgs and Morgan Blake.

Kent away was our next fixture. This was dreadfully close. David Roberts managed to win the last game in progress, sealing an 8-8 tied match. Fine performances were recorded by Feliks Kwiatkowski, James Mansson, Anthony Higgs, David Roberts, Paul Kelly and Stephen Blewitt.

Just prior to our last match of the SCCU season, I realised we had a chance to qualify for the ECF national stages.

We would either have to tie or win the last match in the current cycle. This was against a side who had already clinched the title for the Open section. A tall order indeed.

However, on the day, things did not go entirely according to form. At the end of the day we were to win 10-6. An incredible achievement indeed, against the top team in the league this season.

Individual performances of note in this match were recorded by Mark Broom, Jaimie Wilson, James Mansson, David Roberts and Paul Kelly.

Not only had Sussex Open team qualified for the national stages but in coming second in the Open section, we clinched the Stevenson trophy.

Next we were drawn in the national stage. In the quarter-final we received a bye. At the semi-final stage we were paired with Lancashire - last season's national champions. The match was played in Birmingham.

In a close match, a win in the last game would have resulted in an 8-8 scoreline. However, this was not to be. We lost the match 9-7. Rhys Cumming was to play his first game for a Sussex side for a number of years (since the age of 12 apparently). Rhys drew on a high board.

Other performances of note were recorded by Feliks Kwiatkowski, Mark Broom, Jaimie Wilson, yours truly and James Wheeler.

At the recent SCCU annual meeting, Julie Denning took possession of the Stevenson Trophy - for second place in the Open section.

Though it should be noted there was no formal presentation of the trophy. Julie then suggested she could present the trophy at a Horsham Chess Club's committee meeting to one of two players (Sussex Open team), Anthony Higgs or James Mansson.

She asked if I would be agreeable to this idea, or would rather arrange for collection myself.

Julie was traveling to play in the senior team competition very shortly after in Dresden.

So time was very short. As I was busy and unable to arrange collection in the short time span left, I thought it acceptable if one of the other two players receive the presentation from Julie Denning herself.

It should be noted Julie was the outgoing SCCU president at the recent annual meeting.

As it happens, Julie presented the trophy to James Mansson.

Sussex County Championship Final
2017-18. Game 1; Grunfeld Defence,
Modern Exchange Variation. June 23. Venue
- Brighton & Hove Chess Club

This year's final was always going to be historic. It was going to be either an all-Haywards Heath final, as our own Jeff Boardman was in the hunt, or it was going to be an all-Polish final. Well, you can see how things turned out.

1.d4 Nf6; 2.c4 g6; 3.Nc3 d5; 4.cd Nxd5; 5.e4 Nxc3; 6.bc Bg7; 7.Nf3 c5; 8.Rb1 0-0; 9.Be2 b6.

I chose the Grunfeld as I have no official track record with it, except on the White side many years ago, and it's reasonably sound. The downside is that I don't really know it! The Modern Exchange Variation, with Nf3 and Rb1 instead of the old Bc4 and Ne2, has become the leading White challenge to this defence. The main battleground has become: 9. ... cd; 10.cd Qa5+; 11.Bd2 Qxa2. I rejected this, because the theory of this gambit runs many moves deep, and there are many different ways for White to test the utility of his lead in development. On top of that, Black is basically playing for a draw. The usual grandmaster solution is that Black sacrifices the exchange for a good bishop and a pawn, a lot of pieces come off quickly and Black then tries to hold out. This may be a defensible notion if you are a GM with a perfect memory for all the ways you avoid losing, but it's not so great for the rest of us. There are various ways for Black to keep pieces on the board and play for the win, and 9 ... b6; is one of two or three sensible ideas.

10.h4?! ...; [Totally unexpected! It must never be forgotten that the County Championship, from the first round to the Final, is always an exercise in psychology. It's more about who cracks first than about who puts the best moves on the board. Objectively, Mikolaj's move is dubious, but it serves the purpose of applying pressure. I had to think through the choices from first principles.] 10. ... Bg4!; 11.h5 ...; [after long thought, but having started up the h-file, White must carry on, or Black gets an easy game.] 11. ... Bxh5;

12.Ng5 ...; [This came after another long think. I had initially thought I was going to face an obviously dodgy exchange sacrifice, but White has serious reserves of creativity.]

12. ... Bxe2; 13.Qxe2 h6? ;

[The first big decision for Black, and I got it wrong. Correct was the cold-blooded 13. ... cd;. This is because 14.Nxh7 can be well-answered by both ... d3 and the cheeky ... Re8. [Yes, White left a whole rook hanging and I let it pass. I saw Nxd4 only after playing Kg7. Rogacewicz fell into thought and I just knew he had seen it as well. I fell to calculating. You can all calculate this for yourselves at home and see how happy YOU feel about it.

There is a labyrinth of variations, starting with 17.Nxd4 Kxh6; 18.Nf5+ gf; 19.Qe3+ Kh7;. The game might then go 20.Qh3+ Kg7; 21.Qg3+ Kf6; 22.Qh4+ Ke5;. I saw this position and didn't fancy my chances. Immediately after the game, the players each thought White was winning, but the reverse is probably true. White has various ways of winning the Queen, but Black is left with lots of material for it. Alternatively, White can try 20.Ke2 but ... Qd6 is enough to win. I saw the other choice, 17. ... e5;, and calculated it to a forced draw. Yes, it was a chicken decision, but I reasoned that a draw with Black in game 1 of the County final is not a bad result.] 18.Nf5+ gf; 19.Qh5 Rh8; [If 19. ... Nd7; 20.Rh7+ and 20.Rd1 are each strong.] 20.Rxh8 Qxh8; 21.Qg5+ Kf8; 22.Qd8+ Kg7; 23.Qg5+ Kf8; 24.Qd8+ Agreed drawn: ½ - ½.

Sussex County Championship Final 2017-18.
Game 2: French Defence, Tarrasch Variation.
August 4. Venue: Brighton & Hove Chess Club.

1.e4 e6; 2.d4 d5; 3.Nd2 Nf6; 4.e5 Nfd7; 5.c3 c5; 6.Bd3 Nc6; 7.Ne2 cd; 8.cd f6; 9.ef Nxf6;
10.Nf3 Bd6 11.O-O Qc7;.

[This is the fashionable way for Black to play the main line of the Tarrasch after White chooses the restrained Bd3/Ne2 set-up. The other choices are 11. ... Qb6; or 11. ... O-O;.
Although 3. ... Nf6; is the current main line, and the classical method is the stuffy 3. ... c5; 3. ... Nc6; and even 3. ... a6; and 3. ...
h6; have a lot to be said for them. After 11. ...
Qc7; , Black hopes to position his pieces for an attack on the White King and/or for the ... e5; break, while White will try things such as ganging up on the weak e-pawn, swapping the dark-squared bishops and penetrating on the c-file.]

12.h3 O-O; 13.Be3 Bd7; 14.Re1 Be8;.

[White's set-up is nothing special. It is one of a number of reasonable choices designed just to get the pieces onto sensible squares.
Black's ... Be8; plan is one of the normal replies, with the idea of parking on h5. Black can also try 14. ... Rae8;.]

15.Ng5 Bf7; . [White's 15th ties Black down. It tries for things like the gain of the Bishop pair and/or pawn weaknesses.] 16.Rc1 h6?;

[That was a concession I was not expecting.
We had each been banging out the preceding book moves reasonably quickly, but Black thought for 11 minutes over this one. I expected something like ... Kh8; or ... Rae8;.]

17.Nxf7 Rxf7; [And here I was expecting ...
Qxf7; . In either case, White enjoys a slight plus, but he must be vigilant for attacks on his King or on his d-pawn.] 18.Bg6 Re7; 19.a3 Rf8; . [During and right after the game, I was concerned about 19. ... Qb6; 20.b4 a5;.
However, 21.Qa4 and 22.b5 would have been enough to keep a plus.] 20.b4 a6;.

[Here I started to lose the thread. The computer rates Qd3 or Qc2 as White's sensible choices for move 21. I went a different way, trying to swap the dark-squared bishops. Black was, however, struggling even more than me to cope with the position. The time limit was 40 moves in two hours each. I had used 33 minutes by move 20. Black had used 45. He proceeded to lose clock control.
The time difference between us grew, and he slid into actual time trouble. Either he found handling the position too difficult – which is a serious argument against defending this whole 11. ... Qc7; line – or he was unable to make up his mind between candidate moves. This game is a reminder that the clock is always the 17th piece, to be handled with as much care as the others.]

21.Qd2?! Nd7!;. [For the moment, the dark-squared bishops stay on the board. Black also uses the absence of the light-squared bishop from the centre to threaten to swing a knight to c4. I over-reacted.] 22.Bd3 g5?!;. [Black over-reacts in turn. You can see the justification for the move, a desire for space, but it opens up the King-side too much.] 23.Qc3?! ...;.

[Here my computer gets excited about 23.h4! Bf4;. It is sure of a White plus after any reasonable follow-up such as 24.hg hg; 25. Bc2 ...; or just 24.f3 ... ;. I saw the idea too, but was fixated upon the inferior plan of Bxa6 and Qxc6.] 23. ... Nf6; 24.Rf1 ... ;. [This was after 10 minutes' thought. I was trying for the Bxa6 idea, but couldn't see a clear plus. At the same time, I saw that my King was in a delicate place, so gave it some support. After the game, the players saw the following. First, 24.Bxa6 ... ; can be met by 24. ... Ne4!; 25.Qc2, when my concern was 25. ... Nxb4; 26.Qxc7 Bxc7; 27.ab ba; 28.Rc6 I could not see anything significant here, but after the game we thought this promised some pressure for White. But that's not the problem! The actual problem, which I did not see at all, was 25. ... Bh2+; 26.Kh1 Rxf2;, which wins in all lines. If 26.Kf1 ... ;, the cheeky 26. ... ba; is possible, for if 27.Qxc6 Rxf2+; 28.Bxf2 Nd2#.]

24. ... Rg7;. [Black tries to attack. I tried to tempt him to keep moving his K-side pawns. At this point I had used 67 minutes, while Black had used 81.] 25.f3 Rc8; 26.Qd2 Nh5; 27.Rc2?! ...;. [White could get away with 27.f4 ... ;. I was worried about 27. ... g4;, but the computer likes 28.h4 ..., so that if 28. ... g3; 29.f5 Qd8; 30.f6 ... ;.] 27. ... Nf4; 28.Nxf4 gf; 29.Bf2 Qe7;. [Here, I had used 75 minutes, while Black had used 102.] 30.Re1 Kh8?; [Black must try 30. ... Qg5;. After the game, we liked 31.g4 fg; 32.Be3 Qh4; 33.Bxh6 Qxd4+; 34.Qe3 ...;, but the computer simply gives 34. ... Rgc7;, with a Black plus. White has to play 31.Bf1 ... ;, with no advantage.] 31.Bf5!

GAMES

Qg5;. [Clock times: W: 88 B:110. 31. ... Rcg8; 32.Rxe6 Rxc2+ 33.Kf1 ... ; is grim for Black.] 32.Bg4 Re8; 33.h4 Qf6; 34.Qd3 ... ; [I was prepared for a long grind, as I did not rate my advantage as anything big. For instance, Black can re-route the Bishop to press the White d-pawn. But Black had 7 minutes to the time control at move 40, panicked and lashed out. I had not seen the following tactic was possible, and was lucky it failed.] 34. ... Bxb4; 35.axb4 Nxb4; [If 35.Rxc6? Bxe1;. Black had two minutes left.] 36.Qd2 Nxc2; 37.Qxc2 ... ;. [White is well on top now, but Black might have tried to tough

it out with 37. ... Rge7;.] 37. ... b5?; 38.Qc6 Rg8; 39.Qxa6
[Here Black lost on time in a ruined position.]
1-0.
Black got himself into time trouble trying too hard in an inferior position. The 'professional' approach would have been to grind out a draw and try his luck in the next two games. Rogacewicz is only 17 but is already graded 190 on the new list. He will learn from this experience. Clearly he has master potential and, in years to come, there may be a Polish name other than mine on the County Trophy.

Feliks Kwiatkowski

Comment

THE aura of the competition improved this past season, so that one of the finalists was an abnormally talented teenager.

The title nevertheless wound up in the hands of a geriatric with extensive recent hospital experience, rather than in the hands of some county star with extensive recent tournament experience.

With the aim of securing the future, might I ask that as well as appealing through Sussex Chess News for more participants in future, that a similar appeal is also placed on the county and Mid-Sussex League websites?

This is the first time I have beaten Mark Broom, as far as I recall. Sometimes I have simply been outplayed. However, there were several occasions when I got advantages and blundered them away. So, it has become a major ordeal sitting down with him.

5.d3 Nf6; [The main line starts with 5.d4 ... ;,

out of his theory, while retaining a sound position. Fischer played it on occasion. White cannot expect any serious advantage, but that is said of the main lines against the destabilising mental effect, out of all

A.R.J. Higgs v M.D. Nicholas

Mid-Sussex League Division 1 – Horsham 1 vs Worthing 1. Notes by Anthony Higgs.

[This game, or at least the conclusion to it, was a bright spot in an otherwise fairly indifferent season] 1. d4 Nf6 2. c4 c5 3. d5 e5 [A small smile from the White player. I play the Czech Benoni myself with Black, and know that the lines where White attempts to swap light square bishops early can be interesting, so decided to have a go...] 4. Nc3 d6 5. e4 Be7 6. g3 O-O 7. h4 Nbd7 8. Bh3 b5!? [Generally ...b5 is a good idea in this opening, in this case leading to a Benko-style position] 9. cxb5 a6 10. bxa6 Bxa6 11. Nge2 Rb8 12. Qc2 Qc7 13. O-O Rb4 14. Re1 Rfb8 15. b3 c4 16. bxc4?! [This is unwise. 16.Na4 followed by bringing the other knight to the queenside is sensible] 16...Rxc4 17. Bf5 Nd3 [This is fine, but moving the attacked rook to a4 or c4 was a simpler advantage for Mike] 21. Rab1 Qc5 [Mike is desperately unlucky here, so I can't bring myself to annotate this move as an error. Putting the queen on this diagonal is the right idea but Qa7 is much better – we will see why shortly. Instead despite everything White is now suddenly better] 22.

Bd4! [The melee in the centre works for White now. If the Black queen were on a7, this move could be answered with the superb line 22...Nxe1! 23. Bxa7 Rxb1! 24. Bxe4 Nf3+ 25. Kg2 Nxd2 26. Bxb1 Nxb1 winning a piece. As it is Black should now retreat with 22...Qc7 which limits his losses to a pawn, but instead there followed:] 22...Rxb1 23. Rxb1 Rxd4? [The wrong exchange sacrifice. There are now only two beautiful moves on the board that win for White, can you find them? – see diagram]

26. Kh2!! [A piece down, White plays a quiet king move. I also saw the other winning move Nc3, but didn't want to leave a piece en prise and miscalculate something. The point of both moves is simply to prevent

Memories are made of this

BEFORE I drop dead, I have some stories to tell. I suppose I should do the normal thing, so this first story begins at the beginning, which was 50 years ago, during the school summer holidays of 1968.

I was bored out of my skull. My best friend then was Ryszard Bubez. He was about my age, a relation in that loose grouping known in Polish as the kuzynostwo, the 'cousinery'.

For a long time, he had nagged me to learn chess, extolling its virtues and promising me that I would like the game. Until that summer, I had resisted. But, as I said, I was bored. So I learned the moves out of an encyclopaedia at home, walked the few minutes it took to reach Ryszard's house and asked him for a game.

After all, how hard could chess possibly be?

He beat me something like three times in half an hour, and the bug bit me.

I started off playing at school. In those days, chess was very much a suspect, marginal activity at school, even in the solid establishment that I attended. Come to think of it, chess was suspect and marginal everywhere in those days. I stoked a new club in school, which involved finding a teacher willing to supervise us. I found that there was only one boy close to my standard, Phil Neatherway, with whom I am still in touch.

We must have played hundreds of games in my remaining time at school, some of them clandestinely, passing my pocket set between us under the desks. I am sure our French teacher, for one, knew the score, but Phil and I were each very strong in French, so we got away with it. The school club having limited possibilities, I made inquiries and found there was a real chess club in Haywards Heath.

My first step was a false one. I rolled up eagerly to the Church of the Presentation, only to be told the club had moved. Further enquiries re-directed me to the Congregational Church in South Road, Haywards Heath. ([It is still in the same location, but is now part of the United Reformed Church.])

I turned up for my first proper club night on December 31, 1970. Yes, New Year's Eve, really. I had the date fixed in my mind for decades afterwards but came to disbelieve it myself until, a house-move or two back, I found the actual scoresheets from that evening, with the date. It was freezing cold, with snow on the ground, but there was a strong turnout.

The keyholder was late and so we sheltered on the opposite side of the road while waiting.

I played someone on my pocket set, in the snow, until the church hall was opened up. And then I was in. At a real club.

The game, already magnetic for me, smashed into me like a drug. Club night was then Thursday. The 'high' of a club evening usually carried me all the way into Sunday, after which I started coming down, hungering for Thursday to swing by again.

I liked to be first at the club, and would come as early as I could. I was not, of course, a keyholder, but frequently other church users would let me into the building early. Once inside, I knew where the key to the equipment cupboard was hidden. I would sling chairs and tables into position for the others, with the casual, exuberant, long-vanished energy of youth, and then set out the pieces, boards and clocks, aching for my fix.

I was too late to enter the Club Championship for 1971, but I was eligible for the 1971-72 season's competition. We played for the elegant Sir Clarence Sadd Cup. (I believe he had been a senior bank official in the period between the wars.) That first competition was the setting for the first of two events in my playing career that are inexplicable by normal means. That first event is connected with the following game.

[Yes, my opponent could have gained a material advantage with 11. ... Nxe4;. White has compensation after 12.Nxe4 Bxd4;

[Wow! Top marks to Black for boldness. The plan must have been to check with the Q on c2 and then with the rook on a8, but a flash assessment by 'the computer' suggests that each of g5, e5, Bb5+ and even ab would have led to winning White advantages. You can all input the moves and sort it out for yourselves.]

[Here the game was adjourned! The time control was a generous 30 moves in 90 minutes and then the next move was sealed in an envelope. I was less finicky about recording game events then than I am now. I therefore can't say for sure whether it was

Black or I who sealed the 31st move, but it was probably Black. All my thrashing around had simply resulted in an easily won position for my opponent.

Now we come to the weird stuff. In the period between the adjournment and the resumption, I had a dream. I was sitting at the board in the club. I was White in a rook and pawn ending. I had my elbows on the table, with my hands propping up my head and shading my eyes, so that I was concentrating fully on the pieces.

I could not see the other player, only his hands. I saw the other player's hand make a move and I thought: 'That's bad, because I can now play RxP check and then RxP and win.' (We were still using descriptive notation in those days.)

I promise you, I did not connect the dream with the adjourned game at all. You might argue that my subconscious mind could have been analysing the adjournment. But one of the reasons I am giving the game score is to show that we adjourned in a position that was nowhere near a rook and pawn ending.

It was instead a position still thronged with queens, all four rooks and a pair of knights.

Some years later, while forced to stay overnight in a dodgy guest house in Hastings, because my game at the post-Christmas tournament had lurched into a second adjournment session, something happened which was almost comparable. [But that, I stress, was not the second of the weird incidents I spoke of earlier.] I woke in the morning with a shout, because I had seen in my sleep that I had sealed a bad move. Fortunately, my opponent was even more exhausted than I was, and didn't notice.

However, that event was readily explicable. The Hastings position, analysed while asleep, was the adjourned position. The Haywards Heath position in my dream from 1972 was nothing like my adjourned position, nor was it by any stretch a logical development from that position.

I am sure I was not expecting to win my adjournment with Sharples. Further, even in those times, when amateur playing standards generally were lower than today, a draw would have been a miracle . At any rate, we resumed – probably the week after April 20 – and the game staggered on.]

and Black resigned without waiting to see the h-pawn march.

In the period between the first session and the adjournment session, I had played and won my last remaining fixture, so this miracle save completed my tournament programme.

It also secured the club championship for me at the first try – to my surprise, as well as to that of everybody else, what with me being some way short of my 17th birthday.

I have told the story behind the game to a very few people over the decades, but have decided that the time is right to release it into the wild. You may make of it what you please.

My dear cousin, Ryszard, was, ironically, not an avid chess player. He dabbled with a number of things before turning to the sciences.

He was among the very best of the generation born to those Poles who found themselves exiled in Sussex after the Second World War. He died very young in 1987, under tragic circumstances. I still think of him sometimes when I set out the pieces.
